*TO THE
HON. AUGUSTUS VAN WYCK,
JUDGE OF THE CITY COURT OF BROOKLYN, N. Y.,
THIS VOLUME OF THE "HELLENIAN" IS RESPECTFULLY INSCRIBED.*

Hon. Augustus Van Wyck.

Augustus Van Wyck, seventh in descent from Cornelius Barents Van Wyck, of Wyck, Holland, who came over to this country and settled on Long Island, in 1650, was born in Pendleton, S. C., in 1844. He was prepared for college at Phillips Exeter Academy, and took the degrees of A.B., in 1864, and of A.M., in 1868, from the University of North Carolina, where he was an editor of the University Magazine, a member of the Dialectic Literary Society, and of the Upsilon Chapter of the Zeta Psi Fraternity.

He married Leila, the daughter of Dr. Wm. W. Wilkins, of Richmond, Va., by whom he has two children, a son and a daughter.

He settled in Brooklyn, N. Y., where he first came into political importance as a leader of the reorganization of the Democratic party in that city, in 1880, which practically carried King's County for Cleveland, in 1884. He was repeatedly made Chairman of King's County Committee, and a member of the City, State and National Committees and Conventions, being Chairman of some. In 1885 he became Judge of the City Court of Brooklyn, and has made a reputation for sure and unerring decisions. He is on various committees of the L. I. Diocese of the Episcopal Church, and a trustee of the Cathedral at Garden City. He is a most prominent and loyal fraternity member, having presided over conventions, and has been instrumental in inducing his own and other colleges to reinstate fraternities in their institutions with gratifying results, by his address on the valuable influences of fraternities in college life. He is a member of the Oxford, Lincoln, Brooklyn, Montauk and Constitution Clubs, and of the Zeta Psi Club of New York.

Augustus Van Wyck

Salutatory.

It is with mingled pain and pleasure that the Board of Editors for '94 presents the fifth issue of the "HELLENIAN"—pleasure in that we have been able to accomplish so much, pain that we could not have done more. It has been our purpose in this issue to give a faithful representation of College life, according undue preponderance neither to its serious nor to its comic aspect; to give such a representation as would be interesting to undergraduates and alumni alike. We cannot hope to have realized such a high ideal, but if in any degree we have achieved success, withhold not your commendation. If we have failed, reflect a moment before passing judgment, on the many theses, essays and such like that leave to the college student scanty time for the preparation of aught else.

History.

Four years ago when forty-four freshmen assembled upon the College green, the day of graduation to them seemed a distant thing—a consummation to be most devoutly wished. To-day, as we look around us, thirty strong, considering the approaching severance of innumerable ties and associations, we realize that the time passed has been but a span, that the whilom freshman has become a man, and that the course of another Class has been run. Many faces, once so familiar, are missing. Others have taken their places, and become imaged scarcely less strong upon the memories of their fellows. From its entrance into the University, '94 has ever been noted for a permanent solidarity, and for the equanimity existent among its members. The Class has never been once divided, and its whole course has been progressive. By us hazing was abolished in the spring of '91, and our successive movements since then have been with the endeavor to serve and benefit Alma Mater. The work has been pleasant; the time spent, profitable. With these closing remarks, the Historian, for the last time, lays down his pen, and, stepping behind his comrades, joins them in bidding you—Farewell. THOS. B. LEE.

History of '95.

The Class of '95 is the first that has entered the college since the election of Dr. Winston to the presidency and was larger than any class for many years previous. As Freshmen, there were eighty-eight. Many failed to return at the beginning of the next year, and though reinforced by several new-comers, the class counted only fifty-two men. This year there have been further desertions by Faculty request or parental constraint, until we number but thirty-six, though again receiving several new members. We hope next year to be the largest class graduated since the re-opening, especially as it will be the centennial of the opening of the University.

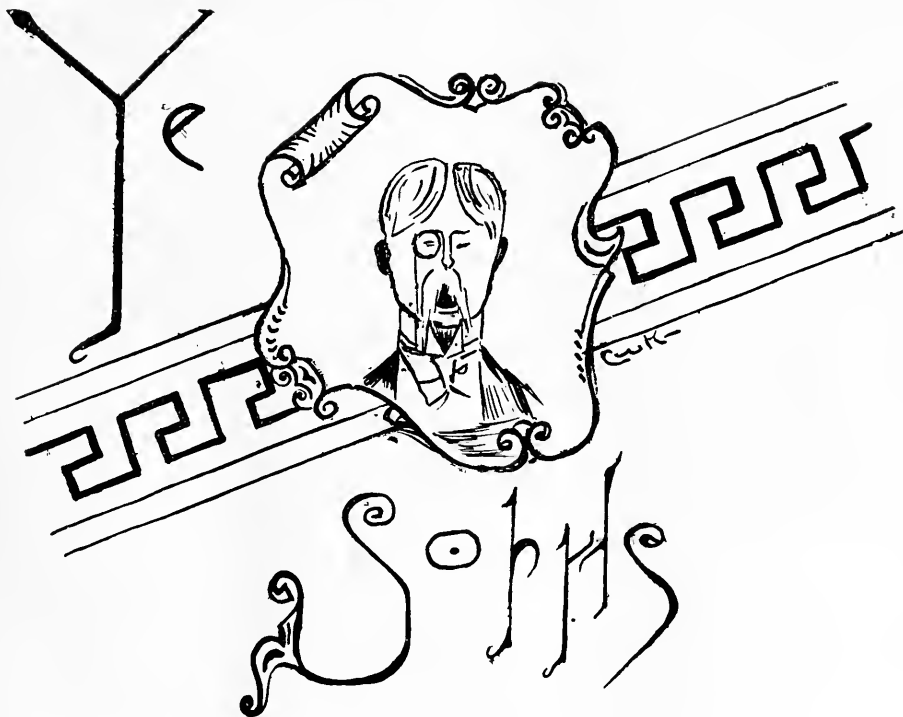

From the beginning, the Members of '95 have made their influence felt in every department of the University. Some are athletes, but more especially in the class-room, the societies, and the caucus are the members prominent. A fair share of all college honors and offices has fallen to the members and more are to come. Within its members are men of every kind. The "loafer," the "grind," the "good fellow," the "bore," the "quiller," all are respresented. The members of the class generally do well in the class-room and take a lively interest in all college affairs as well.

The Junior year is usually considered the easiest of the four, but '95 has hardly found it so. A large percentage of the members have chosen higher work in one or more departments instead of seeking "snaps." Some have even had the rashness to elect Physics and Third French and one brave man has elected Psychology. This last dreaded subject has been met and the Professor forced to say that the "results have been better than from any Junior Class." The English Professor says the same, though the course has been more extensive this year than before. But compliments were received last year. The Professor of Mathematics said that we were more successful in mastering Trigonometry and Analytics than any class since his connection with the University, and the Professor of Latin said that he had never taught a better class.

However, '95 is not satisfied with past achievements. We look forward hopefully to the last act, trusting that it may be the best.

96's History.

Last year we introduced ourselves to the public by relating the experiences of our Freshman year ; now we appear again before you clothed with the dignity of Sophomores. Another year with its pleasures and trials has slowly rolled by, and some of whose more important incidents it falls the duty of the Historian to relate.

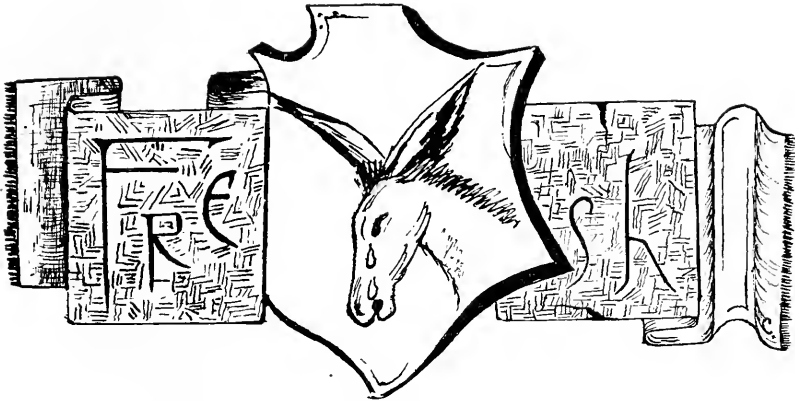

Although since entering, we have lost a number of the original class, yet many new men having joined us during the year, we are proud to say that now our number has reached eighty, being the largest Sophomore Class since the civil war.

Following the custom of the two classes just preceding ours, we refrained from giving the Freshmen any formal initiations into the mysteries of college life. But realizing the need of some such lesson on part of a number of the more presumptions among them, it became our duty to give them a lesson of respect to their seniors. When they gathered together in January, as a body politic to elect, the Sophs., as gentle reminders, persuaded them to postpone their assembly until February.

We are well represented in athletics being here by far the strongest class in college. Among our number on Foot-ball Team are Kirkpatrick, Guion, Denson, Rankin and Stanley ; on Base-ball Team we have Graham, Gregory, Stanley and Stephens (the cyclone pitcher of South) ; in fact to withdraw the '96 men from the two teams, would seriously cripple athletics at our University

Not only are we successful in Athletics, but as our yell aptly says, " we are the people " in every phase of college life. Our status intellectually is demonstrated by the fact that a smaller proportion of our men have found themselves unable to continue with the class than in any class in college. Should the happy condition of affairs thus far experienced extend through the June examinations, we shall pass before you in body assembled another year.

History.

The Class of '97 entered the stage of University life on September 5, 1893. It is not necessary to give a description of the appearance and characteristics of this noble band of knowledge-seekers. Although an extraordinary and uncommon Class, we arrived on the Hill with many of the qualities essential to Freshmen of every age and clime. We were meek, submissive, and at all times cautious lest an over-exuberance of animal spirits should bring down Sophomoric wrath upon us. But, although we came with all the verdancy, awkwardness, and other necessary attributes of the tribe, we came ready to meet the difficulties of our first collegiate year.

Three months of steady work brought us to examinations, the sorrows of which were soon forgotten in the enjoyment of the Christmas holidays. After Christmas came Washington's Birthday, which is always a momentous occasion for the Freshmen. In the afternoon the upper classmen assembled in the Chapel, where they held the annual election of medalists. After some difficulty the Freshmen were confined in the building, and the following deserving members of the Class made recipients of appropriate testimonials of proficiency in their respective vocations: Wharton, lazy man's medal; F. A. Johnson, liar's medal; Newby, booter's; Connor, ugly man's; Dangerfield, twister's; Simmons, pedigree medal; and T. L. Wright, medal for general cussedness. It is some consolation to the Freshmen that the higher classmen were represented in the distribution. At night the annual inter-society debate came off in the Di Hall, and, in accordance with the time-honored custom, two Freshmen acted as Marshals. This honor was conferred on Messrs. John Andrews and Herman Hornthal.

Freshmen have to undergo great difficulties in order to hold an election, due to the enthusiastic interest taken in the occasion by the Sophomores. After sundry and several unsuccessful attempts, we at last succeeded and Freshmen hopes were realized. Already '97 has taken a prominent part in University life, and being the largest Class in U. N. C. at present, and endowed with greater mental capacities than all the others, it is destined to become an important factor in shaping college affairs. In scholarship, in athletics and in every department of college life '97 will always be among the first.

In closing, fellow-classmates, let us remember that the first duty of a student is affection for his alma mater, and after that loyalty to his Class. With this principle in view let us give first three cheers for the University of North Carolina, and then three more for the Class of '97.

History.

The introduction of the Medical Class of '93 and '94, marks a new era in the life of each of its members. For eighteen young men began to learn the mysteries that are enwrapped in the human body. Of these only thirteen answered to their names after Christmas. Rumor says that "Wily Cupid" deftly sent an arrow into the heart of one of these and he found the presence of a young lady far more agreeable than studying a "stiff." Much luck to our lost brother is the wish of the whole class

In athletics our class has taken no stand, thinking it more advisable to study than to play. As the progress of science is taking such rapid strides toward perfection, every professional man is trying to aid in this work, and our class is not an exception to the rule. For three of the young men in the present class have shown remarkable aptness for the study of surgery. Already their boldness and daring in this direction have elicited for them the praise and admiration of the brave. While it has called forth torrents of abuse from the weak and timid.

Some of their recent experiments, if they had been successful, would have furnished precedents for all time to come., e. g.: In the early part of the present session these young men had a patient whose heart was thought by them to be diseased. After consultation it was decided that an operation was the only means by which life could be saved or prolonged; so they removed the heart. It may well be imagined that these young men saw the science of surgery hanging in the balance for some days. Eager eyes were anxiously watching to see what the result would be. Could this one experiment succeed the world and humanity would owe these young men a debt of gratitude which could never be paid. They knew this and felt more.

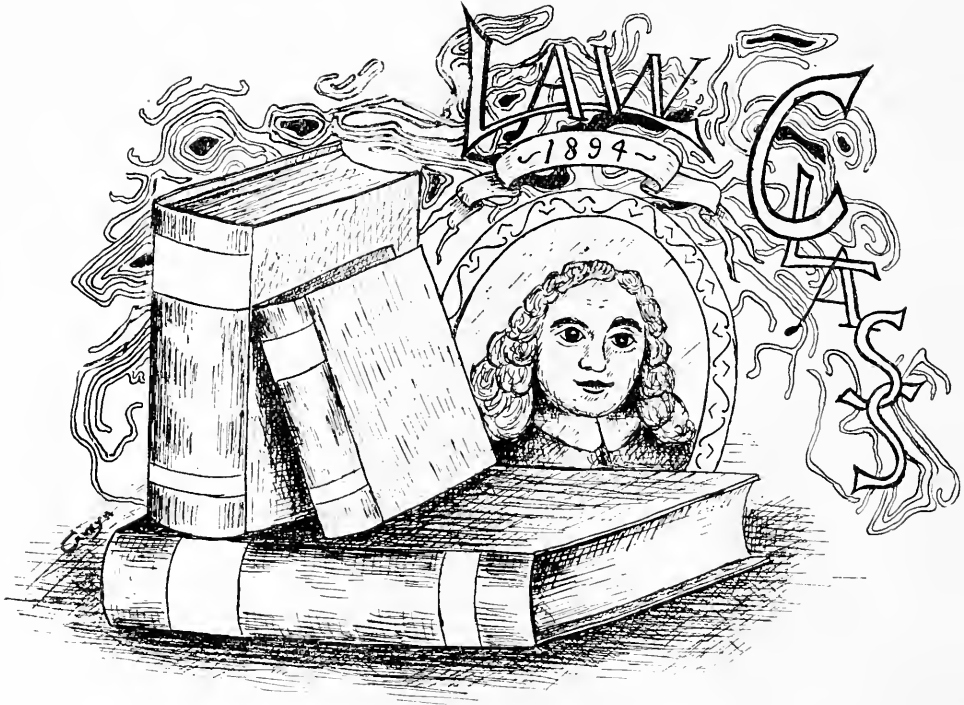

Thousands of homes would be filled with happiness and sunshine, which are now dark and miserable. There would be no more heart-broken disappointed women, but perhaps more heartless humanity.

But this experiment failed. After three days and nights of almost breathless suspense the poor "cat" breathed its last, surrounded by these three brave pioneers in "Cat Surgery."

In years to come, when some of the names that are now on the roll become famous throughout the world, we may well be proud of our illustrious Preceptor who taught us the first principles of the profession. And in return he may well be proud of our Class.

And that you all will be crowned with laurels of success, is the wish of History.

It was the purpose of the Historian of the Law Class of '93-4 to give a complete authentic history of each individual member of the Class. But on the night of April 6, before the Historian had collected his data, the manager of the HELLENIAN called upon and told him that he must prepare his history by noon, April 7, and that he would be allowed four pages in the HELLENIAN in which to say all that he had hoped to say.

Under the existing circumstances, it will hardly be possible for me to tell the virtues and sing the praises of every member of the Class. Then censure me not if I give nothing more than your name, title, and postoffice to the world. Yet to stop short here would do a great injustice to certain members of the Class who have given their physical, as well as their mental, powers to the adding of other illustrious pages in the history of dear old U. N. C. Men come and go, but their acts live in tradition and they (their acts) are handed down from one class to another as the most sacred and cherished of the University's history--these traditions fall upon the apparently insignificant Freshman, and, ere we know it, he is a physical beauty or a mental giant.

It might be egotistic in me to say it, yet I verily believe that some of those who, during the scholastic year of '93-'94, sat at the feet of that grand old man, Hon. John Manning, will be powers in the land. In a strong body, we are most likely to find a strong mind. It has been our aim in introducing athletics at the University to build up a strong body in which the mind may grow. This end has been accomplished in an astonishing degree, although, unlike some of our Northern colleges and universities, the mental man has not been neglected.

While the Law Class has been separate and independent of the University proper until March, 1894 (when it was made a part of the University), yet no other class of students has done more to build up the University and create a college spirit than the Law Class. In athletics the law student has played his part well. Those who remember "Pete" Murphy A. S. Barnard, W. D. Merritt, H. R. Ferguson, Harry Whedbee, Geo. Graham, et als, know that they were great foot-ball players. Then that base-ball team of '94 that cleaned up Lehigh 6 to 1, Vermont University 12 to 3, and held Yale's great team down, has on it our clever Hendren, our cool Lanier otherwise known as "Babe," and our curly-headed Graham. On the lawn tennis court none could beat Graham and "Buck" Vass.

The writer's attention is next turned to the Glee Club, those boys who "can charm the savage breast," as well as the "dear girls," and there he finds our sweet-voiced McSorley and our Apollo-like Benbow.

In the political world some of our Class have already figured prominently. Cowan was a Member of the House of Representatives in 1891, and E. D. Stanford was a Member of the State Senate at the same time. Mr. Claudius Dockery was Vice-Consul to Brazil under the Harrison administration from '87 to the close of the fiscal year of '93.

The Moot Court is an interesting feature of the Law Department. Intense interest has been manifested by most of the boys, and the trials have been highly instructive. The writer has been in many of the courts of the Southern and Western States, and he testifies of his own knowledge when he says that the trials in the University Moot Court, of the scholastic year of '93-'94, would be a credit to most Southern and Western courts. Among those who weigh heaviest in the great contest of mind against mind are our good-natured, witty, quick-at-repartee, "Sorrel-top," otherwise known as John Fowler, and our keen-eyed, far-seeing, and designing Welch. Others did great things of whom the writer has not space to tell.

Howard Foushee led the Class that applied for license in September, 1893; Herbert Ferguson led the Class that applied for license in February, 1894; Sam Welch is pulling in the lead of the Class that will apply for license September, 1894.

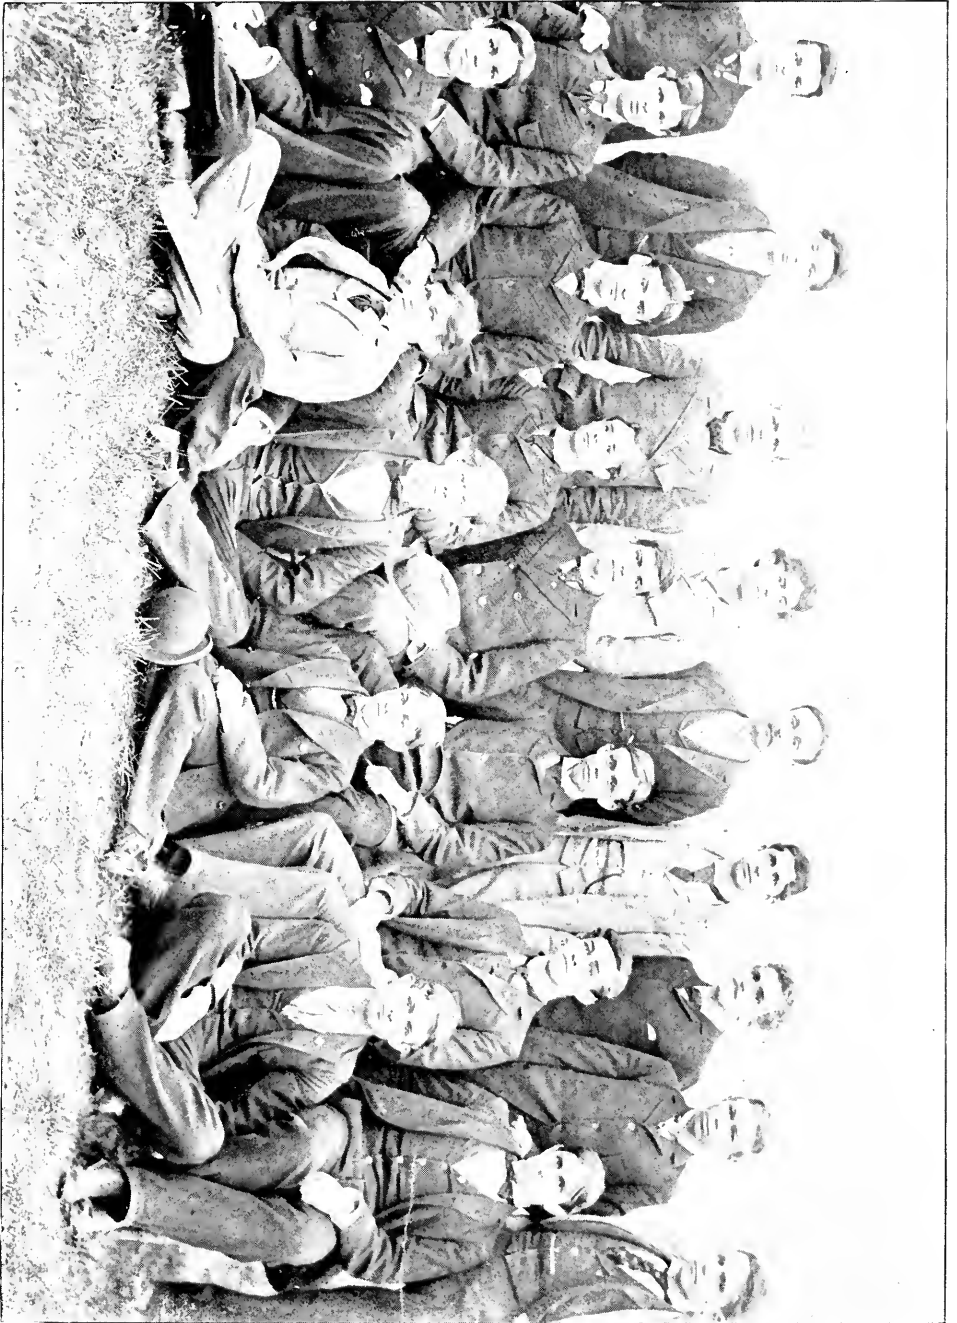

To close this history without adding a word of testimony to the praise of our noble instructor would be base ingratitude in the Historian. It is seldom the case that we find combined in a man profundity, wisdom, gentility and sympathy. But in Dr. Manning we find all these virtues. He is a master of his profession and has but few, if any, equals as an instructor in America. For ten years he has given his time exclusively to "his boys." All of them love him as a child loves its father, because he is kind, gentle, sympathetic, and attentive to each of his pupils' individual wants

The Dialectic Society.

“ LOVE OF VIRTUE AND SCIENCE.”

The Dialectic Society is but a few months younger than the University itself. There is a recorded meeting of the “ Debating Society ” on June 3, 1795, and this was hardly the first meeting. The present name was adopted in 1796. The history of the sister Society, the Philanthropic—first the Concord—is closely connected with that of the Dialectic and was formed by some retiring members in August, 1795. From the organization in 1795 the organization of the Dialectic has never been lost. When it was seen, in 1868, that the University was to pass into alien hands, Hon. Wm. H. Battle was chosen President and the other offices were filled by loyal alumni. These officers were instructed to reorganize the Society whenever the friends of the University should again secure control. The reorganization took place at the reopening in 1875.

The framers of the early constitution and laws built well. Much of the original constitution is incorporated into the one of to-day, in spite of frequent revisions made necessary by changed conditions. But the objects of the Society have not changed. To train men to think quickly and to speak fluently, to be honorable and upright, to control themselves and to govern others, to emulate noble examples, to respect and admire the talents of others, and incidentally to give a thorough training in parliamentary law—these are the objects of the Dialectic Society. That these objects have been accomplished hundreds of her loyal alumni scattered over the State and over the South can testify. Many men have received the most valuable part of their college training within her walls. For the power to move and to lead men is no less valuable than Latin or Philosophy.

The powers and privileges which the Trustees and Faculty granted to the Societies from the first are remarkable, considering the general system of education then prevailing. Though it was considered necessary to watch and guard the students individually with care more than parental, yet in the students collectively great trust was placed. The fact that those powers have generally been wisely used for nearly a century is a practical example of the possibility of successful student self-government. The participation of the students in the government of American colleges, which is being hailed as a discovery in many institutions, is old at the University of North Carolina.

These Societies have worked together for the upbuilding of the institution. The poverty of the University in the early years prevented a large appropriation for the purchase of books. The Societies soon began to accumulate libraries for their members, and now more than ten thousand volumes belong to the Dialectic. Many of these have been presented by members or alumni but more have been purchased by yearly appropriations. The new West Building was erected in 1859 chiefly to provide a hall and a library for the Society. The hall is large and well furnished, and along the walls are hung the oil portraits of some of her distinguished members. The collection is perhaps the largest and finest portrait gallery in the State. There are Gen. Wm. R. Davie, Wm. Hooper, President Polk, Governor Morehead, Governor John Owen, Wm. A. Graham, Senator Vance and others no less distinguished.

H. M. T.

The Philanthropic Society.

One of the most time-honored institutions connected with the University of North Carolina is the Philanthropic Society, established in 1795.

Theory, unreduced to practice, is no theory at all. It was this idea in the minds of the early students of the University that inspired them to establish a Society wherein they might, by practice, become more proficient in literary and oratorical attainments. Thus, for nearly a century, the theory and principles of the class-room have been reduced to practical use within the halls of the Philanthropic Society.

Almost from the Revolution to the Civil War its influence was felt in every Southern State, and since the Civil War, the new spirit of progress that has awakened new life in the University, has also found its way into the heart of the Society; and just as the old method of teaching has given way to the new in the class-room, so has the Society engrafted into its constitution that degree of flexibility which always adapts itself to the demands and necessities of a progressive people.

The work of the class-room and that of the Society have become so thoroughly harmonized, and so perfectly do they play the one into the other that, neither, without the other, could attain their present degree of usefulness, of which we are justly proud.

The objects of the Society is not only to lead its members to higher attainments in oratory, debating and the art of literary composition, but also to inspire those higher virtues, truth and honor, which make character bloom into manliness: and so strictly has it inculcated these higher motives, that it has won for itself the motto: "Virtue, Liberty and Science," and its chosen color—white—the emblem of purity.

The Philanthropic Society has carefully preserved all records and proceedings of each meeting since its first organization, nearly a century ago. These records with many of the literary productions, graduating orations, debates and essays of its prominent members, have been neatly bound and deposited in the Society's archives.

The records show that the Society was first organized under the name of Concord Society, and a few months later was changed to its present name, with Richard Eagles as its first president, whose name is still perpetuated in Eagles' Island, opposite the city of Wilmington.

There has gradually grown up the custom that those students residing in Eastern counties shall join the Philanthropic Society, and those from western counties become members of the Dialectic Society; while those from other States are permitted to exercise their own preference, either from social or personal motives.

The Society is endowed with thirty-five University scholarships and owns half interest in the University Magazine and a third interest in the library recently donated to the University.

Shakespeare Club.

President	PROFESSOR THOMAS HUME,
Vice-President . . .	PROFESSOR H. C. TOLMAN,
Secretary	MR. J. T. PUGH,
Assistant Secretary .	MR. H. HORNE,
Treasurer	MR. J. SAWYER.

Additional members of executive committee, Professor E. A. Alderman, Mr. T. Rollins, Mr. T. J. Wilson, Mr. E. E. Gillespie.

The Shakespeare Club preserves its youthful vigor. Organized eight years ago by our Professor of English, Dr. Thos. Hume, it has been the model and inspiration for such societies in many quarters. Its aim is to give impulse and guidance to scholarly investigation of the English drama, and also to comparative studies in literature of ancient and foreign languages. It has excited more interest in literary composition as an art. Teachers and students take part in the discussion. The public meetings are held monthly. Class-room training, private research and consultation prepare the way for elaborate papers. Advanced students often give the result of work pursued according to the best seminary methods. We have been instructed and entertained by programmes of great variety.

We give some specimens :

1. The dramatic method of treating history. Note the Richard the Third of the Chronicles and Shakespeare's Richard; Anachronisms, in Margaret of Anjou. Three unities in such plays. Hotspur and Hal as Contrasts. The Historic and Ideal elements in Falstaff. Was Shakespeare Lancastrian or Yorkist? The Ethical element in History.

2. Othello, Shakespeare's transformation of Cinthia's story. The historical setting of the play. The Moor in Venice; his race, color, character, relation to state; Othello's jealousy compared with Leonte's; Desdemona compared with Cordelia; the defect of her quality; her foil, Emilia. Original sonnets on Desdemona. The actor's representation of Iago. The natural history of moral actions. The laws of contrast in this play, especially as seen in metre.

3. The Tragedy of Blood.

4. Latin comedy and Shakespeare.

5. Moliere's characters and Ben. Johnson's types compared with Shakespeare.

6. Greek tragedy and the modern romantic drama. The Agamemnon of Sophocles. King Lear.

Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society.

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society was founded in the year 1883 for the promotion of scientific studies and the encouragement of individual research in the State of North Carolina and the South. It has numbered among its members many students and professors in the learned institutions of the State and has published more than a thousand pages of scientific articles in its journal. It has collected over eleven thousand books and pamphlets in exchange for its journal. These are now placed in the University library.

This is the eleventh year of its existence. Its meetings are held on the second Tuesday of each month and these meetings have always been well attended by students and professors, affording a means of intercourse and of improvement outside of the class room.

The present officers are :

Prof. J. A. Holmes	PRESIDENT,
Prof. J. W. Gore	VICE-PRESIDENT,
Prof. F. P. Venable	SEC'Y and TREAS.

The Philological Club.

OFFICERS.

Prof. Thos. Hume . . .	PRESIDENT,
Prof. Walter D. Toy . . .	VICE-PRESIDENT,
Prof. Karl P. Harrington . . .	SECRETARY.

The object of this Club is the presentation of papers of a philological nature and informal reports on topics in the field of philological science.

All persons giving instruction in ancient or modern languages and graduate students working in these languages are eligible to membership.

Meetings are held once a month.

Some of the papers presented are as follows :

1. Some disputed passages in Tibullus.—Prof. Harrington.
2. Does the Saturnian verse of Naevius show an advance beyond that of Livius Andronicus.—Prof. Harrington.
3. (a) The influence of Latin syntax on English.—Prof. Hume. (b) The historical development of the causative construction with faire, etc., in French.—Professor Toy. (c) Explanation of “irregular” accent in the so-called second aorist infinite and participle in Greek.—Professor Tolman.
4. Greek inscriptions of Cyprus, comparison of Cypriote and Hittite Syllabaries.—Professor Tolman.
5. Some studies in the diction of Persius.—Mr. Pugh

North Carolina Historical Society.

OFFICERS.

Dr. Kemp P. Battle, PRESIDENT,
Dr. George T. Winston, } VICE-PRESIDENTS,
Prof. E. A. Alderman, }
Holland M. Thompson, SECRETARY.

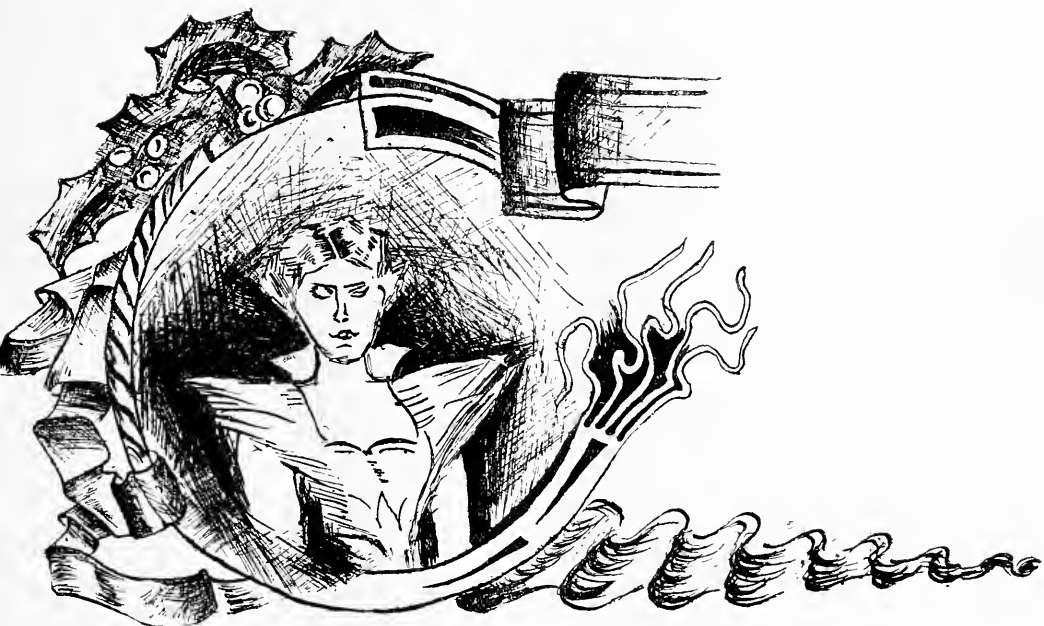

The North Carolina Historical Society has had a nominal existence for about fifty years, but during much of the time it has been dormant. It was founded by that remarkable man, Governor Swain, a few years after his election to the Presidency of the University. The University Magazine was founded at nearly the same time and it was his idea that the formation of the Society would facilitate the securing of historical material which would be given to the public through the Magazine. He hoped thus to excite interest in the subject of our State history. The membership was probably confined to the Faculty.

The present charter was secured March 22, 1875, and the list of incorporators includes many prominent citizens. A meeting was held at Raleigh in May, 1875, and officers were elected. The headquarters of the Society are at Chapel Hill, where a room in one of the University buildings is given for use as a library and museum. The library includes many rare books and some of the manuscripts and letters are very valuable. The collection of Revolutionary autographs is large though incomplete. There are some Indian and Revolutionary relics, a good collection of coins and a very full collection of colonial paper money.

The Presidents have been David L. Swain, Rev. Wm. Hooper, Judge John Kerr, and Dr. Kemp P. Battle. A. G. Brown was the first Secretary, followed shortly by Rev. Charles Phillips, and then in succession, Rev. J. F. Heitman, Dr. Stephen B. Weeks, W. J. Andrews, Howard A. Banks and Holland M. Thompson.

Meetings are occasionally held and specially prepared papers are read. The Society hopes during the next year to send from the University press some of the most valuable of the contributions. If this were done, many additions could be made to its library through exchange for publications of other societies.

PART III.

1. THE WAY IT'S DONE AT N. CAROLINA,
[K. P. H]
2. A CANNIBAL IDYL Taber

A cannibal maiden loved too well
A missionary good,
And he loved her, but dare not tell
His love, for thus it stood:
A cannibal she and a clergyman he
And their creeds were wide apart,
And how could he take, for sentiment's sake,
A cannibal to his heart.

'Twas a problem, vexing, vexing, very,
For the cannibal maid and the missionary.
Indeed, it was.

But the cannibal maiden's love grew bold.
For she was a simple, simple thing,
And thus her love to her love she told:
"Oh, marry me, marry me, be my king,
For I love you, my sweet, well enough,
Oh, to eat,

'Tis a terrible thing, I know,
But I must be your bride or encompass you fried,
I must, for I love you so."

'Twas a problem, vexing, vexing, very,
To the maid, but more to the missionary.
Indeed, it was.

He looked in the depths of her dark brown eyes

With their wealth of love and trust,
And cried, in a flush of glad surprise,
"Ah, well, if I must, I must."

They were wed that day, for 'tis ever the way

That passion must conquer creed,
And a happier pair 'tis remarkably rare
To discover, it is, indeed.

And so 'twas settled, nicely, very,
For the cannibal maid and the missionary,
Indeed, it was.

3. THE SONG OF THE A.B. . U.N.C. Songs,
I.

When I'm an old Alumnus, with children
on my knee,
I'll teach them that the alphabet begins
with U. N. C.
I'll show their little fingers how to find with ready skill,
The fondest spot on earth to me—this dear old Chapel Hill.

CHORUS:

But when I am an old man, my babies on my knee,
I'll teach them that the alphabet begins
with U. N. C.

II.

I'll tell them how—a Freshman green—I came to college here.
('Twas early in the harvest time, and '89 the year)—
And how I looked with pleasure, to the coming month of June.
As I walked across the campus to the whistling of a tune.
(All whistle).

III.

I'll tell them how the Sophomores would ring the college bell
And how they took the clapper out and hid it in the well;
And how they blacked the Freshmen, and greased the Chapel seats,
And cows put in the belfry tower, with acrobatic feats!

IV.

I'll tell them of my bearding house, and how the tough beef-steak
Was tanned and sold again as hide, the finest boots to make.
I'll tell them how the bill of fare was varied every day,
So that we read it forward once, and then the reverse way.

V.

I'll tell them how, as Junior, I broke so many hearts,
That Cupid, doubtless, had to buy a new supply of darts;
A Senior, too, I strolled around, with dignity and pride,
And for my verdant Freshman days I wished again and sighed.

VI.

But I'm going to be an M.D., or else an
LL.D.
I'm thinking of an A.M., and perhaps a
Ph.D.
And I'm thankful, as I stand here, to-day
a full A.B.,
That the Faculty have not conferred the proud degree, "N.G."

Blue and White.

“ Ah, how I love the Blue and White ! ”
So spake I to my sweetest maid,
As round the dear old 'Varsity
And 'neath its oaks we strayed.

“ Loved alma mater ! still she holds
Her sons, though far they rove apart ;
Her colors flame on every crest,
Her face in every heart ! ”

At this she turned, my whimsy maid,
With flashing eyes and flushing cheek :
“ A moment since 'twas I you loved,
My gaze your heart would seek ;

“ To love me and the 'Varsity—?
Faith ! monstrous big your heart must be !
Traitor ! go love the Blue and White,
Prate not of love for me ! ”

As thus she raged, the pretty scold,
I caught in mine her little hand,
Where gleamed beneath the snowy skin
The blue veins' twisted strand ;

I looked above the red lips' pout,
Deep in the azure-darkened eyes,
A moment flashed their starry doubt—
Then drooped in coy surmise.

“ The mater pulchra's dear,” I said,
“ But filia pulchrior's still more dear ;
What ? do I love the Blue and White ?
Yes, when I clasp it here ! ”

A sudden dimple closed the pout,
A glance doth all my pain requite ;
No more she chides because I love
The Blue and White.

A Strange Mystery and its Explanation.

Old Ven he had a great store-room
Within his laboratory
And in it was a demi-john
Connected with this story.

That demi-john was wondrous large
And truly could at best
Hold of that liquid alcohol
Ten gallons more or less.

That alcohol commenced to shrink.
When "Ven" this fact did see
Much perplexed he asked himself
"What can the matter be?"

He knit his brow and thought awhile
And said "I've got it now
Those rascally boys have been in here
And stole that stuff, I vow."

But "ah," says he, "I'll stop that game"
And marking-pot he brings
And smiling paints on the demi-john
"WATER FROM SEVEN SPRINGS."

And then he got a ladder long
And demi-john under his arm
Went puffing and grunting up aloft,
To place it safe from harm.

Back in a corner close and dark
The liquid placéd he,
"If those boys get this any more
I will be darned," said he.

Then chuckled he and satisfied
He quickly cometh down
And strikes a match on the seat of his pants
And perigrinates down town.

SCENE II.

But oh there were some jolly boys
And they were monstrous dry
Says one "let's get some alcohol"
The other he, he said "aye."

Bottles quickly then they got
And slipped out very slow,
Around behind the laboratory
And raised a back window.

Through this illegal orifice
They crawléd one and all
And groped around without a light
To find that alcohol.

And when they found it was not there
Where it was wont to be
"Well I'll be d——" said one of them
The other cussed loud and free.

They scratched their heads and thought awhile
Till one said presentlee
"I'll bet it's up in yander loft, I'se gwine up there and see."

And up that ladder he did skin
His partner he came arter
And quickly they espied that jug
Late labeled "Seven Springs Water."

One stuck his snout into the jug.
The other did the same
They punched each others ribs and cried
"We're onto Old Ven's game."

Into their bottles they did pour
This alcohol so fast.
Says one to 'tother "let's be sure
And get enough to last."

Of this supply of alcohol
They quickly did make use
They biléd it down with carraway seed
And turned it to "chartreuse."

That this chartreuse had wondrous power
Needless 'tis to say
For about a dozen "sewed up" boys
Around the room there lay.

And frisking 'round the festive room
A bevy yet unslung
Reached anou for their guitars
And many a song they sung.

SCENE III.

"Old Ven" stands in his great store-room
With darkly beetling brow
And wishes that this mystery
Could be explained some how.

For old man Harris has been aloft
And got that demi-john,
And measuring out the alcohol
He's found a gallon gone.

"Ber gosh!" says "Ven" and cussed an oath,
"These scamps I know full well
Would swipe the horns from off a goat
And coals of fire from hell."

—The Tar Heel, Feb. 23, 1894.

Man's Constancy.

"One foot on shore and one in sea,
Men are inconstant ever."

Sad I sit here thinking, gazing,
In the fire now flickering, blazing,
As sadly I gaze in its depths as of yore,
It pictures the love of my heart
evermore
As the flames dart now here, and there
A vision I see of beauty rare,
Blithe, gay, bright and debonair,
A maid with locks like the raven's wing,
A voice as the voice of the birds
that sing
And carol at the birth of spring.
Brown eyes, dark and deep and true,
And a heart I thought sympathetic.
Now over my vision comes a change;
My thoughts fly out on a wider range;
I live again at the ball that night
Where love's young dream was at its height,
And till my life be over forever.
Still will come back our talk together.
I said my love would the world
defy;
I kissed the tear of joy from her eye.
Our cup of joy was full to the brim,
Little thought she 'twas a passing whim,
For I think she really believed me.
But the fire burns low on the hearth
as I dream,
My books lie around me untouched
and unscen,

My eyes stray to a face on the wall,
An old love dropped for the maid
at the ball.
The pain from my heart now soon disappears
As I turn me and write to the love of past years.
I called her angel, vowed my love,
Swore I was true as the stars above,
That from her my thoughts would never rove
Then I turned away, my mind at rest,
A complacent feeling within my breast,
For really I believe I believed it.

As over my lesson in Logic I pore,
From my book falls a rose at my feet on the floor,
And again kind Fates spin the web
aright,
For it brings to mind the call of
to-night,
So I hastily dress, with my heart
full of love,
I care for naught else on earth or above.
No more my thoughts I allow to rove,
For my heart is filled with a vision
rare
Of a blue-eyed maiden pale and fair,
A maid with sunny golden hair.
A yellow rose on my coat I pin
And unchanging love fills my heart to the brim

Change of Opinion.

When a Freshman, first he came to college
Full to the brim of all sorts of knowledge,
He wouldn't have been surprised at all
Any fine day to have received a call
To act as Professor

In some school.

When to Sophomore's dignity he did attain,
He, all at once, grew oh very profane.
What once was smartness, he now called "cheek,"
He'd sit 'round the drug store and loaf by the week,
And think he was grown,

Like a fool.

Another year, and he's a Junior sedate,
Freshmen look up to him and think he's great,
Every night in the week, he dons a "biled" shirt
And goes to see the ladies and think he's a flirt,
And a "masher" oh my!

But he ain't.

And now, as a Senior, of sense he's got more,
Thinks he knows less than ever before,
Sees that the world would wag without him,
Thinks his chance for a "sheep skin" has grown very slim,
And wishes he'd studied

To get more sense.

With a Latin diploma tucked under his arm
He goes home to the old man and works on the farm.
To get bread and butter he works with a vim,
For plainly he sees as the problem for him
Coining his knowledge

Is dollars and cents.

—N.—The Tar Heel, March 9, 1894.

Stingy Men.

There was a very stingy man
Who only in the day
Would let his watch run, for fear at night
The wheels would wear away.

There was another stingy man
Who lived away down South,
He chased a jay-bird into h—
For the pumpkin seed in its mouth.

There was still yet another stingy man,
One of the things he'd do,
In order to make his matches last,
Was to split them half in two.

But of all the measly stingy men,
I know one "out of sight,"
He crossed his bees with lightning bugs
To make them work all night.

—Anon—The Tar Heel, February 16, '94.

The Freshman's Lament.

Fall! Fall!! Fall!!!
On a final exam. each day!
And oh! for a Job-like patience
When the bulletin board I see.
Ah! well for the light-hearted Seniors,
That "Logic" is done for at last!
Ah! well for the happy Juniors,
That "Physics" is safely passed!
And the Sophomores pass on rejoicing
When a "One" on "Conics" they see;
But oh! that the sight may greet my eyes
Of a "Four" on "Latin" for me!
Fall! Fall!! Fall!!!
On a final exam. each day!
But the good opinion I had of myself
Will never come back to me.

A True Storie.

Ye Freshemenne called a classe meeting,
 Upon last Saturdaye.
For to transacte some politickes.
 “ How ofte fonde hopes decaye.”

Into ye Chappel they didde flocke
 Where all arre wont to praye
And they made readye to procede,
 “ How ofte fonde hopes decaye.”

Tobias Connor tooke ye chaire
 To speake he didde essaye
But mudd felle on hys auburn haire,
 “ How ofte fonde hopes decaye.”

Ye Sophomores and Juniors too
 With Seniors helde ye swaye
’Twas then ye Freshemenne knewe
 ful wele
 “ How ofte fonde hopes decaye.”

In bottles huge from galleries
 H2s steamede awaye
And following duste and flying chippes
 Made fonde hope faste decaye.

Ye atmosphere most rankke didd cause
 A Freshemann lean to saye
“ I’ll nott goe in ’til reddy,” Oh !
 “ How faste fonde hopes decaye.”

Ye Sophes encompassed hym about
 Ye Freshemann stooede at baye
To force hym in seemede certaintie “ How ofte fonde hopes have flown awaye.”

Thatt Freshemann showed somewhatt of fighte,
 For tho’ ful broad daye
Reflected rightte from blackened eyes
 Helpede fonde hope fast decaye.

Eftsoones some frends persuaded hym
 Thatte he hadd gon astraye
So verry cooly walked he in
 With hope fame from decaye.

But still ye upper classmen rippede
 And reared and yelled Hooraye !!
Until Fresh hopes of projectinge
 Hadd faded farre awaye.

And so from out ye chappel doores
 They came in loose arraye,
While in swifte swepte the Sophomores
 Who chased Fresh hopes awaye.

And then those jollie Sophomores
 Didd elect for all and aye
A ticket full for thatte same classe
 Whose hopes hadd spedd awaye.

Wilkes Caldwell, he was president,
 And Vice was Bill McDade.
But soon the hope which now arose
 Was doomde, was doomde to fade.

The newe-elect doffed lowe their hattes,
 “ We muste resign,” said they,
“ From classe like thys, too green to bearr.”
 Alle hope nowe fled awaye.

And thys is why ye Freshemenne have
 No officers to-daye,
And thys is why they walke aboute
 With lowly mien and waye.

Oh, then gude folke who rede thys tale
 Forever and a daye
Remember, and reminde your kinn
 Thatte ofte fonde hopes decaye.

Take

Care.

When a woman looks at you with eyes so soft,
Beware, beware!
Declares that for flirting she don't at all care,
Beware, beware!
She's trying to get your heart in a sling,
She's got her eye out for a diamond ring;
Tho' for you she don't care a thing,
For she's fooling thee, she's fooling thee.

With woman then 'tis ever thus,
Beware, beware!
All paint and feathers, flirt and fuss,
Beware, beware!
The sex was made but to deceive,
Thou fool, you, if you believe,
Turn away, and laugh in your sleeve,
For she's fooling thee.
Beware, take care, take care, beware!
She's fooling thee.

Question.

Say, which is the happier, Tom or John?
(Both are in love with Mary.)
Tom her picture covers with kisses,
John he kisses Mary.

THE ANSWER :

The happiness of both is much the same,
There is a difference only in name;
'Tis a photograph that Tom doth kiss—
A painting filleth John with bliss.

The Bargain.

Young Cupid and Mercury were together one day,
And Cupid proposed a trade.
" My bow and quiver against your purse, "
And quickly the bargain's made.
And now through the world together they go,
'Tis not the same now as of old.
The god of thieves 'tis who carries the bow,
And women are won with gold.

Rules for Library and Reading Room.

The following rules were handed us by the Librarian with the request that they be published :

1. All persons, except members of the Faculty, are expected to remove their hats on entering the Reading Room.
2. Each paper and periodical must be held as long as possible in order that a large crowd may be kept waiting to see it.
3. No person must think of using less than two chairs at one time, for fear of some being unoccupied.
4. Never put a book on the shelf after finishing with it. The Librarian is paid to do such work.
5. No person must forget to mark favorite passages, to make comments on the fly leaves and to otherwise mutilate the books.
6. Any one desiring to take a nap may do so, as the lounges and sofas are provided for this purpose.
7. Please salaver on the floor, as the cuspidors are only for ornament.
8. Let all remember that the library is the general loafing place, and that it is the proper place for smoking, loud talking, eating, etc.

To a Grat.

Oh Grat ! thou art a precious thing,
Beloved all college o'er !
To him who sent them let's sing praise,
And to him loud our voices raise
In asking for five more.

University Botanical Garden.

P. D. G—d.

This plant was brought to Chapel Hill last September from Wilson, N. C. It must either grow in a damp place or be carefully watered every night. A long proboscis-like appendage, which sticks into everything coming near it, grows from the face of the flower. The plant is often found about graves. It belongs to the Evergreen family.

H. G. C—r, Jr.

This plant belongs to the Sunflower group and was first found in Ireland, where it grows wild. It is frequently carried into class meetings where it shoots forth a very disagreeable gas which, however, is not harmful. The flower is bright red and freshly blooms at all times of the year.

R. R. G—g.

This plant grows only in Wake County, N. C. It will not thrive in the neighborhood of water but does well in dry, sandy places. The flower is very lazy in its habits, growing slowly and coming out quite late in the day. It is of a dirt color and gives off a disagreeable odor.

Pat. H—y.

This is a small weed growing on the streets of Charlotte, N. C., and brought here and planted in the campus by mistake. It can now be found almost everywhere in Chapel Hill. One peculiarity of this plant is that although it does well out of doors it can not be kept in the house. It has a large mouth-shaped flower which is always open for flies.

Book Notices.

“A Brief Discussion of the Evil Effects of Water.” By D. W. Booth. Crown 8vo., pp. 456. $0.15. New York: Frank Beslie & Co.—This book divides the subject into its two aspects—physical and physiological effects. The first part treats of the former, and with Mr. Booth’s usual happy introduction of parallels from animal life, he likens the average college man to the hibernatory bear, clearly bringing out at the end the meaning of his analogy by the felicitous expression, “why it’s too cold to use it after November anyhow.” In his physiological treatment he recommends the best known substitutes for the vile fluid, giving personal experience with such, including many interesting anecdotes, among which we note in particular the one entitled, “The Story of the Phantom Procession or How the Durham Gas Lights Deceive One!” He closes with a note on the pleasing effect produced by the aid of this liquid, at the time commonly called “The Morning After.”

“A Design for the Purification of Natural Gas.” By W. A. Mitchell. Sixteen full-page engravings of the author. 12mo., 125 pp. $15.00.—Mr. Mitchell in this the first of his works gives to the world the result of his research into this hitherto almost undeveloped field. His discovery places within the reach of many men who are endowed by nature, as Mr. Mitchell himself is, the best power of filtering and purifying natural illuminating gas. We do not notice, however, that he has touched on the fatal effects of the process on any persons who happen to be standing near the machine.

“How to Skin Successfully.” By W. W. Dawson. 12mo., pp. 225. $1.25. Rappleton & Co., New York.—The volume contains the most approved scientific methods used by human taxidermists, trappers of the great American bird, the eagle. The unsuspecting individual is first enticed into a “little game,” lead on with a good big “bait,” gradually shown the net, till finally it is too late to “jump the game,” the novice is skinned and the taxidermist reaps as his harvest the net filled with eagles. The moral side of this book recommends it especially to all members of W. C. T. U.

“A Treatise on Removing Freckles From the Hair.” By H. G. Connor, Jr. 8vo., pp. 10. $25.00. McKillon & Co., New York.—Mr. Connor’s temperament particularly fits him for his work. The lotions recommended are soothing and guaranteed to improve the hair. We would venture to suggest one he has not mentioned, which we are sure would afford him and those like affected infinite benefit:

“R. Wash the hair three times a day with c.c. H_2SO_4 and comb vigorously and thoroughly after each application.” We would apologize for this intrusion but we remember he is always red-dy for such. “T.”

COMMENCEMENT.

A Sophomore's Letter.

(Willie wishing to write his brother of a few of his escapades, writes as follows to his father, telling his brother to read only the odd lines, beginning with the first line of each paragraph.)

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., "Easter Night," 1894,

DEAR FATHER;

To day has been a most glorious day. I write this my weekly letter with a heavy heart, because many of the boys went fishing this morning, tho' warned not to do so by me. They went to a pond not far behind the house of Dr. Winston, and brought back a long string of perch. I attended services at the Episcopal Church and am glad to say, enjoyed them very much. It seemed such a pity, tho', that I was not at home. Next Easter I shall try not to have to go alone.

You know we played Yale on Friday in Greensboro, and I wanted to go very much. Unfortunately, quite a number of the boys went "on the sly" with the team, and have been caught up with, which will go pretty hard with them since, as perhaps you may know, the penalty is "probation." We who did not go to Greensboro, envied the reception of those fortunates who went to the schools, went about the old town generally, and called at their friends' homes. They say that some of the town boys got so drunk at the hotel that a policeman took charge of them. The boys came back Saturday and, with their tales, entertained us for the night. The boys give as one reason of our defeat that some of the team were kept awake by a crowd playing poker all night long in the next room. They were found, however, to be strangers on reporting the matter to "Wince" the night after the game had come off. They apologized very humbly and said they thought that it was not possible to get any other room and didn't know they were disturbing any of the team. They seemed quite sorry that such was the case, but I don't know about it as I was informed later by a man who saw them that they were too full to know anything.

By the way, I want to tell you about a scrape I have recently heard one of my best friends in college got in. The other night while Society was going on, I believe last Friday two weeks ago, he was watched as he went to the rooms of several Freshmen, and tore them all to pieces. Prof. Jones caught him. My friend told him to go to ———. The Faculty have met and will make it pretty hard for my friend. With the poor fellow it is quite a serious matter.

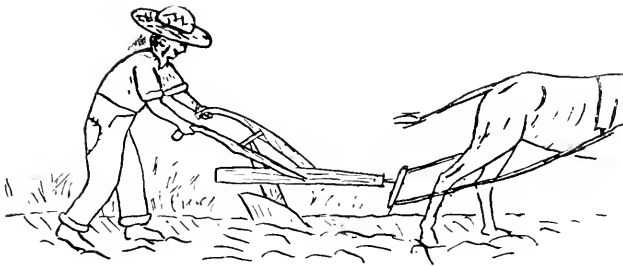

I hear Aunt Julia is with Grandpa. I always hate to be away when she comes to his house, for it is a pleasure to see her around home, since she takes such good care to make herself so prepossessing and pleasant and tries not to bother me in my reading. Give my best love to all the home people. Remember me kindly to Annie Williams, whom I have not seen for some time.

Write soon and send check as I am in need of it.

Affectionately,

WILLIE.

In Conclusion.

"There is no book so bad but some good may be found in it."

In looking back over the past three months we cannot fail to see how far we have fallen short of our ideal, how imperfectly our purposes have been executed, how insignificant has been our work as compared with what we should have wished. Perhaps there are many features of the book that should have been omitted, many that should have been dwelt upon at more length. But, under adverse circumstances, we have done our best, and we beg your indulgence through the common tie of imperfection.

If in our criticisms we have given anyone cause for offence, remember that all was done in a kindly spirit, no offence was intended and we hope that none will be taken.

To the University Magazine our thanks are due for enabling us to procure such illustrations as the Faculty and the buildings, which will add much permanent value to the publication.

. . . PEACE INSTITUTE . . .

ONE of the oldest and most popular schools of the South, has had a continued existence for fifty-seven years. For twenty-one years, in its large buildings at Raleigh, N. C., it has been at the very head of Southern Female Schools.

1. This school does not aim at large numbers.
2. It is limited to seventy-five boarders, and they must be girls of good character and studious habits.
3. The standard is as high as it can be made and is constantly being raised as rapidly as our material will allow.
4. The buildings are well arranged and handsomely furnished and supplied with good apparatus and elegant new pianos.

This school commends itself to those seeking a good school for their daughters, by its home-like arrangements, its constant attention to the moral and physical welfare of its pupils, its healthful surroundings, and its superior faculty. It has two Masters of Arts in its literary faculty. Its principal is a Master of Arts of the University of Virginia. Its Musical Director, Prof. Karl Schneider, is a FULL graduate of Leipzig. His assistant is a graduate of Berlin. The teacher of Modern Languages is a native German. Miss Buck, the Directress of Art, is a graduate of the Philadelphia School of Design, and a successful teacher of large experience.

The school is compact, thorough and progressive, and desires to avoid every species of humbug. For catalogue or information, address the Principal.

OUR "DANDY"

Dressing, the only article that will polish, cleanse and remove stains from all kinds of russet (or tan) colored shoes and yet not darken or injure the finest leather. It will also cleanse and restore old russet reins, riding saddles (and all articles made from Russia or russet leather) to their original color and finish.

Each bottle is in a nice carton, and the bottles hold one-third more than the dressings in tubes

PATENT LEATHER

Polish.

We are having a big demand for our POLISHING PASTE for patent or enameled leather shoes and silvers, the only article in existence that will produce a quick, brilliant and waterproof lustre without injury to the leather. The only polish that will not crack patent leather. Price per Gross, $21.00.

BEWARE of the so-called creams for Patent Leather, as they are mostly grease, and as the dust adheres to it, your shoes look in a short time worse than before, and it will also come off and ruin your pants, while shoes polished with our Patent Leather Paste can be rubbed with a clean handkerchief without soiling it.

Three-minute Declamations FOR College Men

$1.00—CLOTH, 351 PAGES—$1.00

HERE at last is a volume containing just what college students have been calling for time out of mind, but never could find—something besides the old selections, which, though once inspiring, now fail to thrill the audience, because declaimed to death!

Live topics presented by live men! Full of vitality for prize speaking. Such is the matter with which this volume abounds.

To mention a few names—here are to be found speaking each in his well-known style and characteristic vein:

Chauncey M. Depew	President Eliot (Harvard)
Abram S. Hewitt	George Parsons Lathrop
Carl Schurz	Bishop Potter
William E. Gladstone	Sir Charles Russell
Edward J. Phelps	President Carter (Williams)
Benjamin Harrison	T. De Witt Talmage
Grover Cleveland	Ex-Pres. White (Cornell)
General Horace Porter	Rev. Newman Smyth
Doctor Storrs	Emilio Castelar.

Here, too, sound the familiar voices of George William Curtis, Lowell, Blaine, Phillips Brooks, Beecher, Garfield, Disraeli, Bryant, Grady and Choate.

There are poets also:—Longfellow, Holmes, Tennyson, Byron, Whittier, Schiller, Shelley, Hood and others.

More than a hundred other authors besides! We have not space to enumerate. But the selections from them are all just the thing. And all the selections are brief.

In addition to a perspicuous list of contents, the volume contains a complete general index by titles and authors; and also a separate index of authors, thus enabling one who remembers only the title to find readily the author, or who recalls only the author to find just as readily all of his selections.

Another invaluable feature:—Preceding each selection are given, so far as ascertainable, the vocation, the residence, and the dates of birth and death of the author; and the occasion to which we owe the oration, or address, or poem.

$1.00—At all bookstores, or of the publishers—$1.00

NORTH CAROLINA
UNIVERSITY MAGAZINE

(FOUNDED IN 1844)

Is published eight times a year from October to May, during the college year by the Dialectic and Philanthropic Societies.

The aim of the MAGAZINE is, first of all, to preserve the best undergraduate work of our University, and to be the expression of the strongest and soberest thought of the University in all its departments. It will contain in each number an article of the more serious sort by some alumnus of the University or other prominent thinker, besides poems, critical reviews, essays, careful book notices, and editorials of general interest.

Contributions are solicited from both students and alumni, and such as are available, will find a place in the MAGAZINE.

The MAGAZINE is for sale by the book-sellers of the State generally. It may be had at Sever's, in Cambridge, Mass., and at Brentano's, in New York. Single copies cost twenty-five cents; the subscription price is one dollar and fifty cents per year. Address,
